COMMENT OF THE DAY

THE British Government has been

L confronted with ominous signs during past weeks of the determination of workers to insist on new wage claims. Already a number of unions have passed resolutions for higher wages and the Socialist government will not find it very easy to resist these growing demands from the rank and file. There was an almost complete round of wage increases in the six months from April to November last year. In that period some 9,650,000 of the workers covered by the Ministry of Labour's figures for changes in wage rates obtained increases to a total of some £3,600,000 a week, the equivalent of £186 million a year. To those must be added large sections not included in the returns, such as civil servants, local government officers and teachers. The weekly increase in the first four months of this year was six times as great as in the corresponding period last year.

When the dam of wage restraint broke at the end of last summer the index of wage rates had gone up by only four points in two years, but since then it has advanced by eight points. The dam broke because the workers feit that wage increases were failing to keep pace with increases in the cost of living.

While the workers have been getting their eight points increase, the index of retail prices has gone up another seven points and the index of food prices by nine points. The workers naturally complain they are no better off than before they obtained their increases. The situation seems to indicate a vain pursuit of prices by wages. Very naturally trade union leaders view the prospect uneasily. The TUC General Council has failed to produce any agreed policy of its own and is divided in its view on the policy adopted by the Government. There is Mr Thomas Anderson, acting Regional AEC director, said it was too early to tell whether dor to Thailand, Mr Edwin the new find would provide a great new source of uranium. "We are very optimistic for success of the entire front range project, but we cannot say positive yet how rich the deposits actually are," he added. Younger days

THERE was an idealistic aspect I in his thought, especially in his younger days. He could not avoid concerning himself with moral and ethical notions; and when he tried to escape them by using the terminology of economic materialism, he was thrown into contradictions which undermine his theories from the start. The seeds of the failure of Marxism, we can now see, are to be found in Marxism itself. The second main source of error, and of ultimate failure, is in the famous conception of "class struggle." This struggle, which Marx declared to be necessary and inevitable, would lead, he said, to "the ruln of the contending classes." The materialistic side of Marx preached general ruin. The irrespressibly idealistic side of him hoped, rather vaguely, that after the ruin would come a new and splendid and classless world.

Drobny

Wimbledon, June 28. Britain's No. 1 player, Tony Mottram, today brought off the second big surprise of the 1951 All-England Championships, beating Jaroslav Drobny, exiled Czech, by 5-7, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, 8-8. Mottrum, unseeded, played the best tennis of his life to heat the glant left-hander, seeded No. 2, and enters the last 16. Drobny was the favourite to win the title with the bookmakers after his victory in the recent French Championships.

Starved of a major victory for a home player for so long, the 31-year-old Briton was cheered to the echo by the wildly excited crowd as he left the court. It was Court No. 1 where Patty had met his unexpected end yesterday.

Richardson next meets the Armando "find", Vleira, who today eliminated the Swede, Stefan Stockenberg.

Another Swede went out with the defeat of Bengt Axelsson, but he did well to take a set from the South African, Eric Sturgess, who won 4-6, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2. If Sturgess wins his next round match as anticipated he meets the winner of the Richardson-Vieira duel.

...AND OUT GOES MULLOY A third sectled player fell by the wayside when Gardnar Mulloy, ranked No 4 in America, was beaten by the up coming young Italian, Fausto Gardini. The Italian, who won by 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 ngainst the 36-year-old American, now has to face Frank Sedgman, Australian No. 1 seed.

Sedgman once again dropped saveral games in winning. He had to fight hard to beat Straight Clark of the United States B-6, 11-9, 6-3. Another upset was almost brought about by Kurt Nellsen, the Danish Champion, who was finally beaten 6-4, 1-6, 6-3, 8-6-4 by Dick Sayitt, America's No 6, who won the Australian singles title this year. It was a sterling performance by Neilsen who actunlly led 4-3 in the final set. Herbie Flam, the American 2 player, had little in beating Henry

TORIES AND LABOUR FORGOT PARTY DIFFERENCES TO BEAT EGYPTIAN CRICKETERS

Conservative and Labour Members of Parliament forgot their party differences for a few hours on June 18 and joined forces-on the cricket field-to beat the Egyptian Tourists at Kennington Oval.

The Commons were sitting that day, still engaged on their Marathon over the Committee Stage of the Finance Bill, but five "pairs" were arranged between the two main parties in the Commons in the interests of Anglo-Egyptian relations, and the XI was completed by a noble Lord from that Other Place.

People thought it strange that Charlie Bell should have a design tattoord on his forcheadalthough he had fought in more than one war and had been a soldier for Egypt and Spain as well as Britain.

It was a strange story. It began when he met Anna during he South African War. He was convalescing from a head wound. They fell in love, but Anna remained a mystery. She had no parents and she had been educated in a convent at Copenhagen, she said. That She wrote to Charlie twice after he resumed service, but when he replied his letters returned marked "Not known."

One day Charlie was told that three Boers were known to be frequenting a lonely formhouse area. He lay in walt with a couple of men. At dawn three figures crept out of the farmhouse. Charlie challenged. they bolted. He and his men-fired and the three fell.

Charlie went up to his own victim and found-Anna. She was wearing riding breeches. an ammunition belt and a Mauser pistol, and a Balaclava helmet containing a scrap of tartan ribbon which he had given her. Papers in her saddle wallets explained the reason for her secrecy.

Charlie recovered the copper pullet, which was embedded in the rolled blanket in front of Anna's saddle. When Charile died this week at his home in Netherfield, Nottingham, Saged found the bullet in a little wax-filled tin box, a look of Anna's hair twined round it. These, with the tattoo on his forchead, ware his memorial to the tong-ago weetheart be shot by accident .-- London Express Borvice.

Exhaustion Of Rice Supplies Forecast

Washington, June 28. The Agriculture Department said today that the world rice supplies are likely to be exhausted before new crops come in late 1951-1952.

The Dopartment spid the prediction was based on a first-hand, survey of the rice picture in Souths east Asia. The big reason is the disrupting influence of the Korean war. Another reason, however, in that some large rice-deficit countries have increased their buying power because of the high prices they have been setting for rubber, tin, copra and other products. Japan is also becoming a large bidder for world rice supplies and India's requirements have increased, the Department sald. - United Press.

Weevil Killer

Demonstrated

Henderson, Texas, June 28. Farmers in this area are praising the "dream" invention of a 50-year-old Rusk County, Texas, cotton raiser that exterminates boll weevils.

E. E. Perry, tenant farmer with 11 children, said he clearly saw his invention in a dream last summer after he had unsuccessfully fought the cotton-killing weevils in his 30-acre patch.

He demonstrated the "dream" contraption today in a fleld of lush cotton near here. Some 50 scaptical farmers and civic leaders witnessed the test. During the demonstration, Perry drove the tractor, with a machine attached, up and down eight rows of cotton on a farm three miles east of Henderson.

Perry's complicated - looking machine works the way. A COTTONS tank' filled with the inventor's own special insecticide is on the hood of the tractor. This fluid flows through twin "tunnels" past hot exhaust pipes of the tractor. The heat from the exhaust pipes vaporises the fluid and it is then sprayed through nozzles into metal hoods open at the front on each side of the tractor. Each hood has metal springs which act as agitators to gently shake dead larvae insects and eggs loose from plants and into metal trays underneath.

After the test, Perry proudly called for the farmers present to come and take a look. Several pulled a plate from under the March (1952) 2.411/4 fractor and it was filled with May 241% dead weevils, larvae eggs and other insects.-United Press.
